The Julius Meinl case

Marketing plan for entering Latin America

Our partner: Julius Meinl

1862 family-owned Viennese coffee roaster, now in its fifth generation

70+ countries: mostly through local distribution partners

2 segments per market: hospitality and grocery retail

Positioning: Viennese coffee house culture rather than the bean itself, meaning service, hospitality and the idea of taking time for a cup of coffee

How Julius Meinl sells: two segments, two partners

Hospitality (HoReCa)

- Cafés, restaurants and hotels
- The primary segment: hotels matter most, with breakfast and bar business
- A dedicated partner, because hotels and grocery chains are different businesses

Grocery retail

- Coffee for the home, through grocery chains and delicatessen
- Premium assortment
- A dedicated partner: with no own sales organisation in export markets, the partner is the sales force

Who Julius Meinl sells to

Hospitality	Hotels with breakfast and bar service, especially with international guests; premium restaurants and cafés; venues where coffee is part of a quality experience
Retail	Grocery and delicatessen with a premium assortment; shoppers who can pay a premium price; places where brands such as illy are already on the shelf
Less relevant	Venues and retailers competing on price, and areas without purchasing power

The question: growth in Latin America

Julius Meinl sees Latin America (South America and Mexico) as a potential future growth region, where it is currently not present or only marginally.

1. Which Latin American markets are attractive?
2. How could market entry look?
3. How should the brand be marketed?

Central question: Many Latin American countries grow and roast their own coffee and have a strong coffee culture. Why would cafés, hotels, retailers and consumers choose a coffee brand from Vienna, and who exactly would do so?

Six markets, one set of criteria

Markets compared by all groups

Simplified outlines, not to scale

Common criteria by PESTEL dimension

- Political: stability, EU trade agreement
- Economic: purchasing power, consumption, tariff
- Social: coffee culture, tourism
- Technological: digital reach, logistics
- Environmental: demand for certified coffee
- Legal: regulation, product and labelling rules

Assessment strategy

Three group presentations, self-reflection and peer review

Overview of the presentations

Presentation	Length	Weight	Focus
1 Content presentation	15 min	20 %	Market selection tools: theory, real-world applications, pitfalls
2 Midterm presentation	20 min	30 %	Country scoring and industry analysis
3 Final presentation	25 min	30 %	Marketing implementation plan

Presentation 1: market selection tools

1 Content
15 min · 20 %

2 Midterm
20 min · 30 %

3 Final
25 min · 30 %

- Review the tools companies use to screen, compare and select international markets
- Cover the theory, real-world applications and typical pitfalls (e.g., data availability, subjective weighting, outdated indicators)
- Recommend the tool best suited to compare the six Latin American markets for Julius Meinl
- Format: max. 15 minutes and 15 slides, information-rich with clear visualizations
- Document all sources in a separate Excel sheet

Presentation 2: midterm

1 Content
15 min · 20 %

2 Midterm
20 min · 30 %

3 Final
25 min · 30 %

Part A: Scoring method

- One common model: PESTEL criteria and fixed weights for all groups
- Collect and document the data of your allocated country
- Rank of your country among the six, scores by dimension
- Test robustness with the alternative weight sets provided
- Submit one Excel file and one presentation file; end with a justified recommendation

Part B: Industry analysis

- Focused analysis of the allocated country
- Size, growth and demand drivers
- Value chain and industry structure (five forces)
- Rules of the game: import conditions, regulation
- Trends and outlook for premium coffee
- Online scan of brands and prices

Presentation 3: marketing implementation plan

1 Content
15 min · 20 %

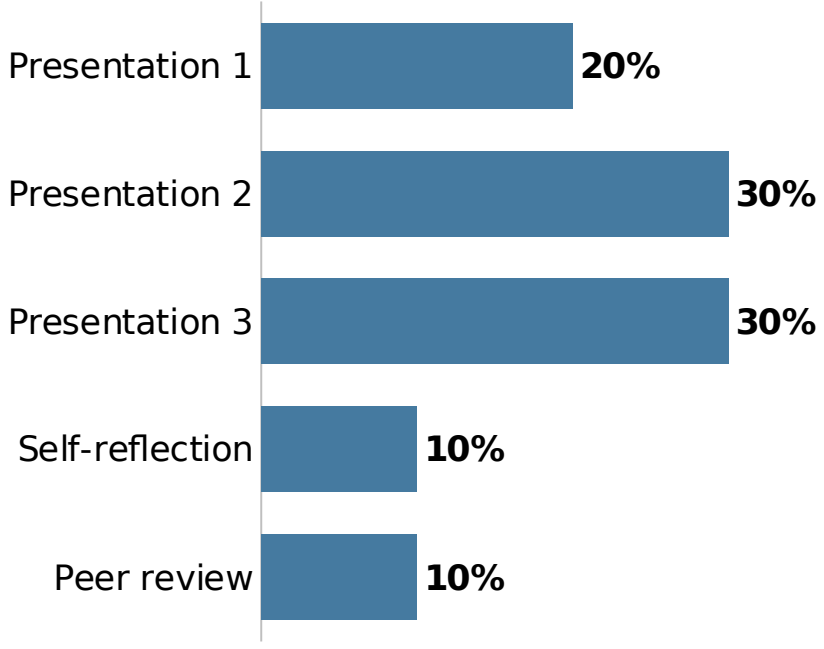

2 Midterm
20 min · 30 %

3 Final
25 min · 30 %

- Market entry and marketing plan for the assigned market: how the brand is marketed and how Julius Meinl enters the market
  - Target segment and first customers
  - Positioning, incl. the answer to the central question
  - Price positioning vs. competition
  - Distribution via a local partner, incl. a profile of a suitable partner
  - Communication and in-market activation (incl. creative implementation)
  - Rough timeline, first-year KPIs and key risks
- Format: max. 25 minutes

Grading

Grade components

Grading scale

- 1 (90–100 %)
- 2 (80–89 %)
- 3 (70–79 %)
- 4 (51–69 %)
- 5 (0–50 %)

Data sources and framework conditions

Framework conditions

- The project is based on publicly available data
- Julius Meinl provides no internal figures (revenues, margins, prices, partner names); none are needed
- When contacting companies or individuals, act as students on a university project, not on behalf of Julius Meinl

Possible sources

- USDA coffee country reports
- Coffee import trade statistics
- National tourism statistics
- Public Julius Meinl material (corporate story, sustainability report, website)

AI, self-reflection and peer review

Use of AI

- Use of (Generative) AI tools is explicitly encouraged
- Tell a rich story in your presentations
- Be honest: list all tools you used
- Graded on quality, innovativeness and variety of sources

Self-reflection and peer review

- Self-reflection: one page on what you learned, what you liked and what can be improved
- Peer review: rate the engagement and performance of your group mates (not yourself); kept confidential
- Submit via Canvas until one week after the last session
